DETAILED ACTION

1. This Office action is in response to the amendment filed October 1, 02. No claims have been amended, canceled, or added.

2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable Abe Yuko (JP 08275216)(cited by applicant).

Claim 1:

Abe discloses a selective calling receiver that automatically stops sound generating and switch to another alert operation depending on setting information in the receiver device and switching to another alert operation such as displaying the message. The receiver device in Abe release the automatic stop means so that when the message is urgent, the emergency alarm tone is continuously generated and the emergency message is displayed on the display. The first table and the second table for storing advance setting information are not clearly shown in the reference. However, it appears that the receiver device in Abe has the setting information as to which caller/message the device should respond to and the sound generation should be automatically stopped or be continuous depending on whether the source of call determined to be urgent. Therefore, the device analogously provides first and second table, in this device, a memory, to determine whether an urgent sound or automatically stopped sound should be made.

Note that the device also shows the caller's ID on the display.

Claims 2-9:

The claimed different sound patterns, volume, vibration and when or how the alert should start/stop only presents a choice in design as to how designer and user desired the system to operate.

Claim 10:

The rejection of claim 10 recites the rejection of claim 1, except it is a method claim.

Remarks

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
